Why Is Kyndryl being Investigated for Securities Fraud?

Kyndryl is being investigated for violations of the federal securities laws following a significant stock drop. The decline in Kyndryl's stock price caused significant losses to investors.

Kyndryl is a provider of enterprise technology services offering advisory, implementation and managed service capabilities to customers in more than 60 countries. Kyndryl is the world's largest IT infrastructure services provider.

BFA is investigating whether Kyndryl misrepresented its cash management practices, including the drivers of its adjusted free cash flow metric, and the efficacy of Kyndryl's internal controls over financial reporting, for FY2025 and the first three quarters of FY2026.

Why did Kyndryl's Stock Drop?

On February 9, 2026, Kyndryl announced that it would delay the release of its fiscal Q3 2026 financial statement pending an accounting review into its cash management practices and related disclosures, including regarding the drivers of the Company's adjusted free cash flow metric, and certain other matters following document requests from the SEC. Kyndryl also announced the immediate departures of its CFO and General Counsel.

On this news, the price of Kyndryl stock dropped over 52% during the course of trading on February 9, 2026.
