Why is UWM Being Sued for Securities Fraud?

UWM has been sued for securities fraud following a significant stock drop resulting from alleged violations of the federal securities laws. The decline in UWM's stock price caused significant losses to investors.

UWM originates, sells, and services residential mortgage loans in the United States. In December 2025, UWM and Two Harbors Investment Corp., owner of RoundPoint Mortgage Servicing, signed an all-stock merger agreement valued at $1.3 billion.

According to the complaint, in March 2026, Two Harbors terminated the UWM agreement after CrossCountry Mortgage made a competing cash offer and agreed to pay UWM's termination fee.

As alleged, UWM failed to disclose that it had deviated from its traditional strategy of not hedging its mortgage servicing rights by taking a major hedge position, that it over-hedged itself in anticipation of the Two Harbors transaction, and that its purported efforts to balance risk created excess hedging risk.

Why did UWM's Stock Drop?

On August 5, 2026, after the market closed, UWM reported Q2 2026 financial results, including a $603.2 million interest rate derivatives loss which contributed to a $451.9 million second-quarter net loss. Total equity also fell 43.6% year over year, reflecting the net loss and derivative-related charges.

Then, on August 6, 2026, UWM disclosed that it “over-hedged” while protecting against the Two Harbors transaction and stated that UWM does not traditionally hedge its mortgage servicing rights.

UWM further disclosed that when it was acquiring Two Harbors and a large mortgage servicing rights book, “it created a little more risk,” that UWM “did put a hedge on to protect against that risk,” and that “the Two Harbors transaction went away,” creating a hedge loss.

On this news, UWM’s stock dropped $0.64 per share, or 34.78%, from a closing price of $1.84 per share on August 5, 2026, to $1.20 per share on August 6, 2026.
